PROJECT DETAILS

PERFORMANCE AND DETERMINATION OF OFDMA IN LTE

The LTE employs OFDMA for downlink data transmission because Orthogonal frequency Division Multiple Access (OFDMA) scheme offers high spectral efficiency and better resistance to fading environments. In OFDMA the data is modulated using multiple number of sub-carriers that are orthogonal to each other because of which the problems associated with other modulation schemes such as Inter Symbol Interference (ISI) and Inter Carrier Interference (ICI) are reduced. In this the performance of OFDMA system in LTE is taken into account, Then, the main technologies are explained , together with possible improvements , their associated challenges , and some approaches have been considered . We also investigate the performance of OFDMA in LTE physical layer by considering different modulation schemes on the basis of BER, power spectral density (PSD)and error probability.
